The Flash Technique (3 CEs, 3 EMDRIA CEs)

Flash is a recently developed therapy procedure that involves having the client resolve a traumatic memory without consciously engaging it. Preliminary research has found Flash to be non-distressing, safe, rapid, and effective. In this workshop, participants will learn about Flash research and theory, view a demonstration, and participate in supervised small-group practice.

Attachment and Dissociation: Assessment and Treatment

(13 CEs, 12 EMDRIA CEs)

This workshop will provide tools to both assess and work with attachment trauma and dissociation, as well as offer a structured approach to ensure client readiness and proper preparation for trauma work. Participants will be introduced to using integrative strategies such as attachment resourcing, ego states/parts work and metacognitive/mindful awareness to build affect tolerance for processing trauma and addressing dissociative barriers.

Integrating Creative Art Therapies and EMDR with Complex Clients

Clinicians with a primary focus in EMDR are often looking for ways to deliver the EMDR protocol in more developmentally sensitive ways which feel safer to the traumatized client.
